

I oppose the weakening of Indiana's Telephone Privacy law. I understand that the Consumer Bankers Association (CBA) has chosen to challenge Indiana's Telephone Privacy law in a proceeding before the Federal Communications Commission. The CBA is attempting to impose the federal "established business relationship" exemption on Indiana consumers. Indiana's Telephone Privacy law has been the single most positive piece of legislation passed on a federal or state level in my lifetime as it concerns enhancing the quality of family life. Previous to this legislation, our home was bombarded by countless menacing phone calls from members of the Consumer Bankers Association (CBA) and other such businesses and their telephone marketers. Do not grant this "established business relationship" exemption. If I want to do business with these entities, I will contact them, without these unsolicited interruptions in my precious family time. Again, I urge the FCC to not grant this "established business relationship" exemption.
